

Broadband on Power Line shows a high likelihood of blocking short wave broadcasting and amateur reception. It would seem that it would place private communications "on air", easily available to your friendly neighborhood hacker.

It does not appear to this broadcast engineer that power lines are the place for radio transmissions.